

Is Jimmy Carter Brainwashed?

Democrat Linked To Institute Terrorists

July 4 (NSIPS) — The Democratic Party is on the verge of nominating a virtual brainwashed zombie — Jimmy Carter — as its Presidential candidate for the bicentennial-year elections.

In a scandal that makes the 1972 Tom Eagleton fiasco look like peanuts, the U.S. Labor Party has accumulated evidence showing that the entire Carter “phenomenon” was concocted, Clockwork Orange style, in the subbasement laboratories of the Institute for Policy Studies-Brookings Institution-Trilateral Commission think-tank circuit, at the behest of top Wall Street bankers including David Rockefeller and Averell Harriman.

The emotionally unstable Carter, moreover, appears to be under the direct psychological control of Dr. Peter Bourne, a known brainwasher currently operating as Carter’s mid-Atlantic campaign coordinator. Bourne was described by one well-placed Democratic Party source in Chicago as spending “half his time with the Institute for Policy Studies crew and the other half with John Gardner” of the Rockefeller-funded Watergating machine, Common Cause. Bourne is also a key agent creator of the CIA’s terrorist gangs now being activated by Lower Manhattan’s insurrectionists to overthrow the country’s Constitutional government and to install a completely manipulable zombie like Carter in the Oval Office.

Parroting such code words as “trust”, “love” and “unity” in a linguist’s computer, Carter’s empty hulk is being transported around the country to preach the virtues of fascism to the population. As part of this effort, the motley assortment of reputed Weathermen, related police agents and naive teenagers who comprise the bulk of Carter’s decidedly weak campaign apparatus are actively conspiring to deprive the Labor Party 1976 LaRouche-Evans Presidential ticket of Ballot status.

Is Carter Brainwashed?

There is every indication that Carter’s Tavistock grin and his synthetic religion are the direct results of a systematic behavior modification program carried out by his “closest friend,” psychiatrist Peter Bourne, and by his sister, Ruth Carter Stapleton. Sister Ruth, a so-called born-again Christian, practices a hideous primal scream type of therapy overlaid with a gloss of “faithhealing” fundamentalism.

Carter has a history of marked mental instability which would make him highly susceptible to such a brainwash program as well as rendering him completely unfit for the intense demands of the presidency. In 1966, shortly after losing his first Georgia gubernatorial bid, Carter suffered a major mental crisis. “Life had no purpose...even the smallest failures seemed like calamities to me,” Carter said of this breakdown. He “resolved” the breakdown, he wrote, when his sister Ruth, an attempted suicide turned faithhealer

— got him to “surrender his will to God.”

The Institute Brainwasher Behind Jimmy

Carter eagerly surrendered his will—not to God, but to Wall Street. Just prior to his second grab at the governorship in 1970, Carter hooked up with psychiatrist Peter Bourne, who was then running a brainwash center in Atlanta. Bourne quickly became the empty shell’s “closest friend.”

Scion of a British intelligence family, Bourne trained in psychiatry at the Walter Reed Army Research Institute, notorious as a brainwash center, before deploying to Vietnam in 1966 to profile U.S. Special Forces in combat. Returning to the United States a year later, Bourne was assigned to the State Department’s counterinsurgency arm, the Agency for International Development (AID). Simultaneously Bourne launched his domestic counterinsurgency career. Drawing on his psywar experience in Vietnam, Bourne set up the terrorist countergang, the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, and joined the board of directors of the Institute for Policy Studies southern outlet, the Institute for Southern Studies in Atlanta. There Bourne met and promptly befriended the unstable Carter.

Carter returned the favor as soon as he became governor. He appointed Bourne to head up Georgia’s drug abuse program and also granted him the only permit in the state for methadone, the drug created by the Nazis to make people work faster with no pain. At the same time, Carter was reportedly receiving funds from Capricorn Records, a rock record company currently under investigation as the nexus of a major drug-running operation in Atlanta.

In 1972, while still working closely with Carter, Bourne was given the number two job at the White House’s Special Action Office on Drug Abuse. From there he directed various terrorist-producing drug programs, including the infamous Lincoln Hospital Detox center in the Bronx, N.Y. where the cop-killing Black Liberation Army was hatched. One of Bourne’s personal visits to Lincoln Detox occurred on the same day that a Detox brainwash doctor, Richard Taft, was found dead in a closet.

Carter as Governor:

Laying out of the Red Carpet for Brookings

Bourne clearly saw in Carter the perfect opportunity to create a Manchurian candidate. According to Bourne’s father — a former major in the British Army’s Special Forces who currently heads the Yerkes Primate Research Center for the study of apes and baboons — his son “has always been interested in how to get a President elected from the sociological and behavioral experimental points of view. He’s the person on Carter’s staff who is running a really scientific presidential campaign.”

Under the tutelage of mad scientist Bourne and other IPS agents, Carter's four-year term as governor of Georgia became an experiment in proto-fascism. Beginning in 1971, Carter's term coincided with an abrupt shift in Wall Street's Southern strategy. Previously the major financiers, especially the Rockefeller brothers, had used the South as a haven for industry escaping the organized industrial working class of the North. The onset of the world depression in 1967 forced them to drop all pretense at industrial development. A massive zero-growth campaign was launched, aimed at convincing the Southern population that the limits of growth had been reached, and that some form of austerity was not only necessary but desirable.

Jimmy Carter became the chief spokesman for this anti-human outlook in the so-called New South. As Pat Walters, an IPS-linked Atlanta-based counterinsurgent observed recently, "Carter said the things that needed saying. When other people were still talking about attracting industry to the state, Carter was talking about the quality of life." Working out of Ford Foundation and Rockefeller Foundation-controlled institutions such as the highly-influential Growth Policy Board, the L.Q.C. Lamar Society and the Southern Regional Council, Gov. Carter inaugurated a series of sweeping fascist "reforms."

One of his first actions upon taking office was to permit more than 100 whiz kids from private industry, government and the think-tanks (most notably MIT and Brookings) to de facto take over the state. Ostensibly working to develop a plan for making Georgia's government more manageable, these Wall Street agents actually experimented with many of the same Nazi programs which Carter is now fronting for on a national scale. Handicapped and mentally-ill patients were removed from hospitals and put to work under the guise of rehabilitation. Methadone maintenance was introduced into the state's drug program through Carter's controller, Peter Bourne. A speed-up program for state workers was initiated. "Soft" counterinsurgency techniques like Civil Disturbance Units were introduced on a large-scale for the first time in the country.

Carter meanwhile rammed through the State legislature a series of so-called "sunshine bills" pioneered by Common Cause's John Gardner. The bills which ostensibly made government "more accessible" had as their primary purpose the terrorizing of any independent-minded legislators. The courts were "streamlined" along the lines developed by Rockefeller lawyer John J. McCloy's New York-based Fund for the Modern Courts. Brainwashing "therapy" programs were introduced into the state's "mental health" and prison institutions. A statewide austerity program was launched under the fanciful title of "zero-based budgeting." Not surprisingly, most Georgians concurred that, as governor, Carter "stunk."

Wall Street, however, thought differently.

While mad scientist Bourne functions as Carter's immediate personal controller, a small group of preeminent Wall Street financiers and their personal think-tankers constitute the actual machine behind Carter. David Rockefeller and Averell Harriman, handpicked Carter to run for the presidency in 1973. Having successfully unleashed their Watergate insurrection team against President Nixon, the two cabalists decided to create the optimum "post-Watergate" candidate whose anti-big business, anti-growth, and anti-corruption facade would paste a smile over their fascist policies.

After putting Carter under observation for a while, Rockefeller recruited him to his newly formed Trilateral Commission in December. There he was turned over to commission director Zbigniew Brzezinski and the Wharton School's Lawrence Klein for programming from the bottom up. Gloating, controller Bourne recalled how "David Rockefeller and Brzezinski agreed immediately that Carter was the ideal politician to be built."

Several months later Clockwork Orange Carter launched his campaign with ample financial support from his Rockefeller-Harriman benefactors, including George Ball's investment banking firm, Lehman Bros.; the South African butchers Oppenheimer and Co.; Mobil Oil; C. Douglas Dillon; Henry Ford II, Time-Life's Henry Luce III; nuclear madman Paul Nitze, and others.

From Plantation to Concentration Camp

From the beginning of his campaign, Carter served as a mouthpiece for Lower Manhattan's most explicit Schachtian schemes. His foreign policy program — designed by Ball Nitze, Brzezinski, and Richard Cooper of the Trilateral Commission — has been lauded in the Washington Post as indistinguishable from that of the warmongering Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Carter's domestic program — hatched from the bowels of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Brookings — demands the most vile forms of slave labor, including Hitler-youth type work camps. Carter also has publicly endorsed breaking strikes and busting unions in order to repay the banks' debts and was instrumental in pushing through the infamous Ohio CCC bill.

Self-described as "poor white trash made good," Carter is aspiring to be puppet president of a vast Wall Street-run plantation, complete with chain gangs. No wonder so many Democratic Party convention delegates are responding to the Labor Party exposé of Carter by threatening to defect not only from the Manchurian candidate, but from the party. As one Washington delegate put it: "I knew the guy was a zombie. Nobody could be that stupid normally."
