

EIR Special Feature

The case of Classical motivic thorough- composition

Appendix to 'The Substance of Morality'
by Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. (EIR, June 26, 1998)

A report compiled, under the direction of Anno Hellenbroich, by Liliana Celani, Ortrun and Hartmut Cramer, Bruce Director, Anno Hellenbroich, Stephan Marienfeld, Mindy Pechenuk, John and Renée Sigerson, Jonathan Tennenbaum, and Kathy Wolfe

Contents

INTRODUCTION:	Music, education, and morality by Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr.	27
CHAPTER 1:	The tradition of Florentine bel canto	28
CHAPTER 2:	J.S. Bach and inversion as a universal principle of development in the continuum of musical composition	36
CHAPTER 3:	The scientific discoveries of J.S. Bach's The Art of the Fugue	46
CHAPTER 4:	The 'Royal Theme' from A Musical Offering in dialogue among Bach, Mozart, and Beethoven	52
CHAPTER 5:	W.A. Mozart's Fantasy in C minor, K. 475 and the generalization of the Lydian principle through motivic thorough-composition	62
CHAPTER 6:	The principle of 'time-reversal' in Mozart's works	73
CHAPTER 7:	On questions of motivic thorough-composition in Beethoven's late works	77
CHAPTER 8:	Brahms' Fourth Symphony: A masterpiece of motivic thorough-composition	98