Mitchell Leaves Bibi with Very Little Wiggle Room

In nearly 10 hours of meetings with Israeli leaders, including two hours with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin "Bibi" Netanyahu, U.S. Special Envoy George Mitchell made unequivocally clear April 16 that the U.S. will accept nothing less than a two-state solution. All talk of Netanyahu's "economic peace" is unacceptable outside of a two-state solution as defined by the so-called Road Map and Annapolis agreements, and the Arab peace initiative.

"There is nothing to add to the very clear statements made by former Senator Mitchell," a U.S. official who was in on the meetings told Ynet. "Whoever hasn't comprehended this, doesn't understand what President Obama is saying."

Leaving Netanyahu with little, if any, wiggle room, the source also stressed the need to end settlement construction in the West Bank, and especially in East Jerusalem.

The source then told Ynet, "Contrary to the impression created in Israel by the new government, President Obama is determined to advance the peace process with the Palestinians in the near future."

Ha'aretz reports that Mitchell told Netanyahu that the U.S. would like to see Palestinian-Israeli talks run parallel to Syrian-Israeli talks.

Japan's Abe: Build Maglev And Bering Strait Tunnel

Former Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, speaking April 17 at a Washington event promoting a U.S.-Japanese Maritime Alliance, noted that the two periods of Japan's greatest development—the Meiji Restoration and the post-World War II era—were both based on close collaboration with the U.S.

A LaRouche representative remarked from the floor that Japan, in the 1970s and

'80s, was committed to great infrastructure development policies, spearheaded by the Mitsubishi Global Infrastructure Fund, including the bridging of the Bering Strait, and asked whether Abe believed that such a policy could be part of a solution to the current global financial collapse. Abe answered at length, that this was very important, that only bold projects of this sort can solve the crisis, projects that, 30 years from now, people can look back upon and see our accomplishments.

The U.S., he said, should build maglev trains between Boston and Washington, and between San Francisco and Los Angeles. "As to the [Bering Strait] tunnel, it would be of the greatest benefit to build a road and a maglev train through such a tunnel under the Bering Strait."

Soros's Pothead Agents Get 'LaRouched' in Mexico

The LaRouche Youth Movement (LYM) broke up the controlled environment created by the drug lobby at the Mexican Congress April 15.

Outside, legalizers leafletted a Spanish translation of an article by top drug legalizer "Athan Needleman" (Ethan Nadelmann), calling on the Obama Administration to "help Mexico" by legalizing dope; inside, in the plenary of the Chamber of Deputies itself, paid agents and volunteers for George Soros's global drug legalization offensive, one after the other, took to the podium to demand that Mexico legalize marijuana this very legislative session.

There was also opposition from an occasional speaker during the Chamber of Deputies' three-day forum debating the legalization of marijuana: LYM organizers interrupted from the floor on the opening day, to warn that Mexico must not capitulate to this new British Opium War; a few Congressional voices spoke out against legalization, on the grounds that humanity and morality had to be defended.

On the final day, organizers of the plenary turned the podium over to an old hand from Soros's U.S. stable, Richard Cowen, of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML), to deliver the closing speech. Cowen demanded that the Mexican Congress pressure President Obama to legalize pot. The cat was out of the bag. The Congress had fallen for a British intelligence trick.

But the LaRouche Youth Movement exposed the game. As television cameras rolled, five LYM members began to sing, in bel canto, filling the hall with a song written for the occasion, as they unveiled a large, brightly colored poster of a smiling George Soros, with the British flag as his halo, holding a chain attached to the neck of a woman on all fours, whose face was that of the perpetually grinning Nadelmann, who is saying, "Drugs will make you free!" And across the top, among marijuana leaves, are the words: "George Soros: the British Agent who pulls the chain on the untameable shrew."

Efforts by the forum's organizers to silence the LYM could not be heard over the bel canto singing; a pot-supporter went into action, distributing posters on caring for "Mother Earth," but for all his yelling, he couldn't be heard, either. Security finally moved in to clear out the LYM organizers, as the TV cameras rolled, and the journalists followed the organizers out for interviews.

India-Russia Deal Spreads Nuclear Power in India

A new Indian-Russian agreement will build more nuclear reactors in India, including four units at Kudankulam in Tamil Nadu, the Indian state across from Sri

The deal is between Russia's Atomstroyexport and India's Larsen and Toubro, and focusses on the Tamil Nadu state site. Atomstroyexport is currently implementing projects that account for one-fifth of world construction of nuclear power reactors, according to the announcement.
