

back to updates

Global Business Network

The Finale

Written by a reader of Miles and published on 12th October 2021

O Fortuna, Imperatrix Mundi

Just a day after part two of the GBN series was published in April, the Strategic Futures Group of the US National Intelligence Council finally released their newest Global Trends report,<sup>1</sup> threatening us again with pre-planned shocks and fake crises, spreading doom and gloom in the media. All this while the rich boys are saying that the best is yet to come.

In August, the US Office of the Director of National Intelligence released a summary of the Intelligence Community assessment on Covid-19 origins,<sup>2</sup> reaching no conclusions. They still can't decide whether the virus is natural or made in a lab, omitting the third option that there is no evidence of its existence at all.

In 2004, Pharma Futures – a scenario planning project on the future of the global pharmaceutical industry – published the report The Pharmaceutical Sector: a Long-Term Value Outlook.<sup>3</sup> The scenario planning was done by Global Business Network, the funding was provided by a Dutch, an American and a British pension fund, the UK Government Department for International Development, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Nathan Cummings Foundation, GSK, and Novo Nordisk, while one of the participants was also a representative of the Kaiser Family Foundation. The surname Cummings should remind you of Dominic McKenzie Cummings, former chief adviser to Boris Johnson during Covid (2019–2020), and Mansfield Cumming, the first chief of MI6.

Pharma Futures "brought together fifteen informed private sector stakeholders [...] to review how the sector might develop over the next ten to fifteen years [...] The project addressed the dilemma of how to convince investors of ongoing profitability while simultaneously meeting growing societal expectations. Pharma Futures identified a growing imbalance between the short-term benefit that industry provides to shareholders, and the productive research that these shareholders and other stakeholders want from the industry in the long term. While societal expectations may be changing, institutional investors and other industry commentators continue to have high expectations of pharmaceutical profitability that translate into powerful incentives to the sector to continue with its current business model". The report was released in December 2004, so the target period is December 2004–December 2019, which is when Covid-19 officially started. Among the members of the Working Group<sup>4</sup> there were also representatives of Johnson & Johnson (as in Boris Johnson), Pfizer, and AstraZeneca. One of the scenarios they provide in the report is called The Politics & Public Health Scenario, where they envision "a global flu outbreak [which] causes public outrage about the lack of investment into new antibiotics and vaccines". This scenario could apply to both the fake 2009 swine flu pandemic and 2019 Covid pandemic. I will never forget Dr. Nancy Snyderman's words on a TV show during the swine flu hoax at the time: "Forget the conspiracy, listen to our government agencies, these guys are telling the truth, you know, there's no conspiracy here folks, just get your damn vaccine." You can still find the video on YouTube.<sup>5</sup> You can even catch a banner that says "Panel recommends speeding swine flu vaccine production". It was the same script as today: new virus, wash your hands, listen to Fauci, get the vaccine.

The usual suspects left their fingerprints on yet another document. In 2010, the US National Intelligence Council and the EU Institute for Security Studies teamed up for the Global Governance 2025 project,<sup>6</sup> which consists of scenarios that illustrate "various permutations that could happen over the next 15 years" (2010–2025). The most relevant for us is the scenario Gaming Reality: Conflict Trumps Cooperation.

In summer 2021, I – admittedly a bored diplomat – find myself sequestered for several weeks in Perth (Australia). A new outbreak of bird flu, despite the rapid quarantines put in place, has spread and closed down most major airports. I am trying to get back to Europe for my annual leave, but most connections have been cut. To while away the time, I am thinking back on world events. The current international scene holds an uncanny resemblance to a computer game called "Peace Hero" I used to play with my son years ago. Unlike most games, this one was constructed so you earned points for finding ways to cooperate with fellow contestants, all of whom assumed roles of major countries or international organizations. The world was confronted, for example, with a pandemic – not unlike the present – and the challenge was to find which countries could provide emergency vaccines.

The EU Institute for Security Studies provided another revealing report in September 2019 called Stress Tests: An Insight Into Crisis Scenarios, Simulations and Exercises<sup>7</sup> with a chapter Unleashing 'Virus Z'... where they give us a glimpse into how they plan fake events like Covid:

We could, for example, design a scenario whereby a light aircraft crashes somewhere in the EU and a few days later an unknown contagious virus (let us call it 'Virus Z') emerges near the crash site with increasing numbers of people hospitalised as a result.

Such a scenario gives us two avenues to pursue simultaneously. First, a pandemic is a good way to mobilise an EU-wide response because it has a trans-boundary element. By not specifying what virus it is, not only do we add an extra layer of urgency for participants but we can control the time period in which the scenario takes place. For example, the 2009 '(H1N1)pdm09' influenza pandemic led to 274,304 hospitalisations in the space of a single year. Here, we would also have to decide if the virus is transmitted only by human-to-human contact or whether it is also zoonotic and spread by animals such as migratory birds. Second, the fact that the virus is related to a plane crash in the same vicinity opens up the possibility that there was malicious intent behind the outbreak of the virus. For example, a terrorist group or hostile foreign power could have deliberately crashed the plane with infected people on board and thereby exposing the emergency responders to the virus [...]

For our purposes, we will assume that the light aircraft landed in a northern European country called Vallaland and that the craft bore the insignia of a non-EU country called Surik that is a security concern for the Union. For our scenario to work, it is best that Virus Z emerges in a geographical area that will allow for it to spread across borders [...]

Following the scenario we have set, a tactical approach would focus on how Vallaland would deal with the crash site and whether transport nodes should be closed to stop the spread of the Virus Z into the neighbouring countries of Surima and Gorgulu. A tactical approach may also involve thinking about the capacity of hospitals in Vallaland and how national authorities could communicate their response to the general public and neighbours. By way of a response, this more tactical approach may seek to limit the spread of Virus Z within Vallaland and thereby stress test its national crisis response capacities [...]

In the same report, we also find that in January 2018 "the European Commission organized an exercise on public health and hybrid threats ('Exercise Chimera'),"<sup>8</sup> which focused on a "fictitious terrorist organisation that caused an outbreak of a communicable disease following a deliberate release and undertook concurrent cyber-attacks on critical infrastructure including hospitals". Chimera, you say? Like the 'Chimera virus' (a biological weapon) from Mission Impossible 2, where a company wanted to make a pandemic to profit from the vaccines?

So this is what governance actually looks like. You hire scores of scriptwriters to make stories for exercises, which you can then sell as fake events in so-called live exercises, to quote Mike Pompeo,<sup>9</sup> in order to reach the desired goal. Mike attended the US Military Academy at West Point and was the director of the CIA for one year during Trump's mandate. NATO defines a live exercise as "an exercise in which actual forces participate".<sup>10</sup> So Covid-19, according to Pompeo, is just an exercise, not a real event. See the 1997 film Wag the Dog where Hollywood shows us how it is done.

Before we get to the main part of the paper, I would like to hit another thing that relates to the first paper in the series. There, we learned about the double cross (cross of Lorraine) being connected to the Kennedys.<sup>11</sup> See the ring above, from the intro to Magnum PI, worn by Tom Selleck, who is a Kennedy. You will find this symbol also on the logo of Nabisco (National Biscuit Company), famous for the Oreo cookies. It turns out that among the predecessors of Nabisco is the Kennedy Biscuit Company.<sup>12</sup>

On the first picture, we can see the ellipse (= Eye of Providence?) within a triangle (= pyramid?) with the double cross on top of it. We can see also the sunrays and Knights of Malta crosses on an Oreo cookie's face. The cross and the ellipse are supposed to symbolize the orb and cross or globus cruciger, "a Christian symbol of authority since the Middle Ages, used on coins, in iconography, and with a sceptre as royal regalia".<sup>13</sup> But the cross of globus cruciger has only one horizontal bar, whereas Nabisco's has two. I think the double cross symbol represents two spars on a mast of a sailing ship, and therefore the navy merchant elite, i.e. the Phoenicians, the Sea People, the blue blood. Which the Kennedys definitely are.

This could also apply to the globus cruciger, which uses only one horizontal bar. I guess the earlier elite used a one-barred cross (one spar) and a later generation added another one to make a two-barred cross (two spars) based on the same principle – a sailing ship's mast on top of the world they conquered. And by the way, the system of ropes, cables and chains that supports a sailing ship's mast is called rigging. Quite appropriate, don't you think?

Let us now move to the main part of the paper, where the focus will be on some big old families from Italy and abroad in relation to Covid and other things.

As you know, Lombardy was heavily promoted as the epicenter of Covid in Italy when this hoax started in spring last year, but has miraculously disappeared from the media since then. Lombardy is the wealthiest region in Italy and its historical financial center. The biggest government party in Italy since 2018 has been the Five Star Movement. Its former leader (and current guarantor) Beppe Grillo was seen wearing a protective mask on two occasions on 17 December 2019.<sup>14,15</sup> Although his statement that he used the mask to protect himself from "germs and viruses" that could come from journalists' microphones could be read as a form of provocation towards the media, it was clearly a signal to those in the know that the psyop was about to get started.<sup>16</sup> This is important because when you see who is behind and in the front of the Movement it makes total sense.

Grillo is from the city of Genoa (northern Italy, west coast), which has historically been one of the most important ports in the Mediterranean and—like its Phoenician sister Venice—was one of the most powerful maritime republics for over seven centuries. From the 12th to the 15th century, the city played a leading role in the commercial trade in Europe, becoming one of the largest naval powers of the continent and considered among the wealthiest cities in the world. It has hosted massive shipyards and steelworks since the 19th century, and its solid financial sector dates back to the Middle Ages. The Bank of Saint George, founded in 1407, is the oldest known state deposit bank in the world – for a time, it competed even with the Dutch East India Company and the English East India Company. Genoa is also the birthplace of Grimaldo Canella, founder of the House of Grimaldi (rulers of the Principality of Monaco). Genoa's flag features the cross of Saint George, like the one of England, while the Duchy of Savoy and the medieval Republic of Florence feature an inverted version of the same cross.<sup>17,18</sup>

Also see the flags of Denmark, Norway, Switzerland, etc. According to Wikipedia, Grillo's father owned a small factory called Cannelli Grillo di Genova producing welding torches, and they weren't short on money,<sup>19</sup> while Grillo himself was catapulted into the world of television right after high school in the Seventies, and then in the 2010s he became one of the most prominent examples of the populist surge which arose in Europe at the time.<sup>20</sup> This is all we get from Grillo's pages on Wiki, and Geni's info is all private, which means they are hiding something big. But if you dig further, you find much more.

There is a Palazzo del Grillo (Grillo's Palace) in the center of Rome, owned by the Grillo family. Before them, it was owned by the Conti family, which is a variant of Conte (as in Giuseppe Conte, Italian prime minister from 2018 to Feb 2021 and current president of the Five Star Movement party).<sup>21</sup> One of the members of the Grillo family was Onofrio del Grillo. Although Wiki says that he comes from a noble family from the region of Marche (central Italy, east coast),<sup>22</sup> the Treccani encyclopedia tells us that on his paternal side he comes from the Grillo family that originated from Genoa and had a presence also in Tuscany.<sup>23</sup> Onofrio moved to Rome, started working in the Vatican and became a member of the Roman nobility. He married Faustina Capranica, whose noble Roman family members held high positions in the Vatican, owned two theaters and were also writers.<sup>24</sup>

We can find even more prominent ties to the Vatican with pope Innocent IV, born in Genoa as son of Beatrice Grillo,<sup>25</sup> and Clelia Grillo from the 18th c. who married into the famous

Borromeo dynasty from Milan (originally from Rome) with high-level positions in the Vatican as well.<sup>26</sup> Today, one of the Borromeo descendants is married to John Elkann/Agnelli (owner of FIAT and The Economist), while another is married to Pierre Casiraghi from the Grimaldi dynasty of Monaco/Genoa.

So who are these Grillos? They are an ancient noble family, one of the wealthiest and most influential in Genoa, present also in Spain, France and Hungary,<sup>27</sup> and related to the Grimaldis as well.<sup>28</sup> They are also members of the Knights of Malta. The Heraldry Institute of Rome provides us with more precious information: they are princes, dukes, marquesses, counts, barons, lords; they gave four cardinals, senators, military officials etc.; they were nobles in the Kingdom of Savoy-Piedmont-Sardinia (the Agnellis come from Turin, Piedmont), Republic of Florence, Kingdom of Naples and Kingdom of Sicily (Beppe Grillo's father is Sicilian).<sup>29</sup> Among their titles there is one that caught me by surprise – Lord of Casaleggio Boiro, a small commune in Piedmont which used to be called just Casaleggio until 1863.<sup>30</sup> This is very important because one of the co-founders of the Five Star Movement, along with Beppe Grillo, is Gianroberto Casaleggio.

Last name: Grillo

Dossier: 18998

Type: Heraldic Preview

Language of the text: English

Nobility: Principi - Marchesi - Conti - Baroni - Nobili

Nobles in: Italia (Regno di Piemonte - Repubblica di Firenze - Regno di Napoli - Regno di Sicilia)

Heraldic Preview :

Grillo

Italiano

English

Español

Português

Deutsch

The name Grillo is among the oldest and most illustrious in Liguria, it has been remembered since 1126. A Grillo family, already noble before 1529, formed in that year one of the noble hotels constituted by Andrea Doria; it gave four cardinals to the church, senators, captains to the homeland, had feuds and noble titles: prince of Moterotondo, of Evoli, duke of Mondragone, lord of Basaluzzo, Biotta, Buffalora, Capriata, Carpeneto, Castelnuovo, Casaleggio Boiro, Cassano, Cassinelle, Molar, etc. Great is Spain. This branch is extinct in Genoa. The current representatives of the name Grillo re-attach themselves to the common parent Pietro, who, according to the deeds of the notary Lanfranco (year 1110) and as it appears from the Genoese convention with King Alfonso against the Moors, stipulated in the year 1164, would have lived around 1100. Their descent from him emerges from an authenticated genealogical tree, up to 1502 by ...

The ties between the Grillos and the Vatican are ongoing, since Beppe had a private meeting with Tarcisio Bertone in 2007, just a year after he had become the Vatican's Secretary of State, while before that he was the Archbishop of Genoa.<sup>31</sup>

Other people at the top of the Five Star Movement's government also fit in with the script. Luigi Di Maio is the current Minister of Foreign Affairs, the former leader of the Movement, and the former Deputy Prime Minister of Italy. Maio sounds a lot like May/Mayo, doesn't it? We saw the May/Mayer/Meyer/Major family in Part 2. Could Di Maio be a variant of Meyer? If you look up the origins of the surname Meier, you find that "May families also lived in Poland and Italy"<sup>32</sup> and that one of the variants of the surname Major is also Major.<sup>33</sup> Luigi Di Maio was born in Naples, and the Heraldry Institute of Rome lists families Di Maio, Maio (Mayo? think about the 'Mayo Clinic', named after William Mayo) and Mai (May?) with ties to the Kingdom of Naples and the Campania region, the capital of which is Naples.<sup>34</sup>

Compare the coats of arms of the Maio family with the ones of the Meyer family (sources: Heraldry Institute of Rome and House of Names).<sup>35, 36, 37</sup>

Di Maio
Variations Last name: de Maio - di Majo - Maio - Majo
Nobles: Italia (Regno Di Sicilia - Regno Di Napoli)
Nobility: Duchi - Baroni - Nobili - Cavalieri
Language of the text: Italiano

Maio
Variations Last name: de Majo, Majo
Nobles: Italia (Regno Di Napoli)
Nobility: Nobili - Cavalieri - Conti - Duchi
Language of the text: Italiano

Mai
Variations Last name: de Majo - Maio
Nobles: Italia (Lombardia - Emilia Romagna - Campania)
Nobility: Nobili
Language of the text: Italiano

They both feature a lion and a tree. The tree on the pictures provided by the House of Names of both families is the same. Plus, Wiki tells us that "Meyer is a German surname, often but not always used with the Nobiliary particle 'von' (of)".<sup>38</sup> The same applies to Di Maio, since 'di' means of: von Meyer (of Meyer) = Di Maio (of Maio).

Di Maio's life partner is Virginia Saba, who comes from the city of Cagliari, the capital of the island of Sardinia. Her surname reminds me on the famous Italian writer Umberto Saba, born Umberto Poli, from Trieste. He assumed the pen name Saba later in life. According to Wiki, his father was from a noble Venetian family, while his mother was Felicità Rachele Cohen, a wealthy Jewess.<sup>39</sup> I assume Saba is a surname of one of Umberto's ancestors. After a quick search, I found out that the Saba family are nobles, and they had a branch also in the city of Sassari.<sup>40</sup> Well, that's on Sardinia.

Last name: Saba

Dossier: 15797

Type: Heraldic Preview ⓘ

Language of the text: English ⓘ

Nobility: Nobili

Nobles in: Italia ⓘ

---

Heraldic Preview :

Saba

Italiano English Español Português Deutsch

 Ancient and noble family, originally from Lazio. The commendator GB of Crollalanza reports the blazon of this family in the volumes of his historical blazon dictionary of the noble and notable Italian families. Other branch. Sassari family whose news dates back to the fifteenth century. The family was very rich, a Francesco, who had lent large sums to the king, obtained in 1419 the recognition of generosity; later he was at the siege of Monteleone and obtained as a reward in 1434 the jump of Quirquigio in Caputabads and in 1435 the fiefdoms of S. Antonio, Muroscos and Oriostale in Flumanargia. In 1439 his son, another Francesco who was ambassador of Sassari to Alfonso V, bought the lordship of Condrongianus, Saccargia and Bedos from the De Feno family. In 1440 it obtained the recognition of the nobility and in 1442 it acquired from the Centelles the lordship of the uncontrada ...

We are also provided the family's coat of arms with the Cross of Saint George, as the one featured on the Genoese flag.

Blazon Saba

Coat of arms of family

Language of the text: Italiano

Di rosso a 3 corone d'oro, 2, 1, al capo di Genova.

Buy a heraldic document with your coat of arms

So we have a link between the Cohen/Saba–Maio/Meyer families and Beppe Grillo. So far, so good.

It also turns out that the wife of the current Italian PM Mario Draghi is a descendant of the Medicis.<sup>41</sup> Remember the Genoese Grillos being present also in Tuscany?

Wiki tells us that Draghi is a Mancini on his mother's side and admits he's an upperclass boy from Rome. The Mancinis happen to be one of the highest-ranking families in the city's history and they had a branch Mancini Uberti, which was one of the richest families in Florence (= Medici).<sup>42</sup> Also, think about Vincent Mancini from Godfather who succeeded Michael Corleone as the new Don.

As mentioned before, the co-founder of the Five Star Movement is Gianroberto Casaleggio, who was born in Milan. We saw above the link to Grillo through Casaleggio Boiro, but there is another one that is even more interesting. The Heraldry Institute of Rome lists the Casaleggio and Scati Grimaldi di Casaleggio families.<sup>43</sup> The Grimaldis take us back to the Grillos, since they were both top Genoese noble families related to each other.

Casaleggio

Nobles: Italia

Nobility: Nobili - Cavalieri

Language of the text: Italiano

---

Scati Grimaldi Di Casaleggio

Nobles: Italia

Nobility: Marchesi

Language of the text: Italiano

We get more proof that the Scati Grimaldis are indeed a branch of the Grimaldis from Monaco/Genoa from their own page on Wikipedia.<sup>44</sup> There is also a marquis Vittorio Scati Grimaldi di Casaleggio in the book Aristocrats in Bourgeois Italy<sup>45</sup> and you can find more info about the Casaleggios and Grimaldis on the website of the Villa Scati: "In 1883 the Count Vittorio Emanuele Scati of Casaleggio carried on the house enlargement [...] The Scati, the only noble family of Acqui origin, received at the Savoia Court, reached the height of magnificence when the marquise Costanza Scati Grimaldi became the lady companion of the queen Maria Adelaide."<sup>46</sup>

The whole saga of the Five Star Movement started with Beppe Grillo's blog, which was edited by Casaleggio Associati (Casaleggio & Associates), an IT consulting company dealing with e-commerce, founded in 2004 in Milan by Gianroberto Casaleggio, his son Davide, Enrico Sassoon and two other men (5 in total). Interestingly, the company was initially headquartered in Via Sant'Orsola Street "in one of the palaces of the ancient Borromeo family",<sup>47</sup> while today, they moved to the Via Visconti di Modrone Street a few minutes away. The Borromeo and the Visconti families are top nobles from Milan related to each other, and you saw a few pages back that the Grillos are related to the Borromeos and that Gianroberto is from Milan.

Grillo's blog was created in 2005, the political party based on the blog was founded in 2009, they won the first parliamentary seats in 2013 and they have been leading the government since 2018. As long as they were in opposition, they talked against the system, the Bilderberg Group and things like that, but slowly they changed course and today the government is led by non other than a former president of the European Central Bank.<sup>48</sup> I could sum up the whole point of the Five Star Movement project by quoting Leo Lyon Zagami, an Italian high-level aristocratic spook related to the British royalty, whom I mentioned in the Kingsman paper:

"Most of the Grillo's supporters I have met are good guys that are not familiar with the marketing strategies of the Casaleggio Associati and their occult background. They can be easily manipulated. If you're not familiar with the world of Intelligence, which goes hand in hand with the Telecom and with Casaleggio, they wrap you around their little finger [...] This is a show, because at the moment they enter the parliament, they don't exist anymore, it's all blocked. It's a show to block the masses from making a revolution."<sup>49</sup>

This was taken from the second part of an interview from 2012. In the first part (minute 11:18), Zagami is talking about a conversation he had with a man who worked for Casaleggio Associati, and says the following:

"Leo, you don't have to worry about politics. We already got a political plan for Italy.' At the time, they had in mind to install a sort of a technocratic government led by Mario Draghi."<sup>50</sup>

Which is exactly what happened eight years later. Today, Casaleggio Associati is run by Gianroberto's son Davide, The Mystery Man Who Runs Italy's 'Five Star' From the Shadows, as the New York Times wrote. It should not surprise us to see Enrica Sabatini as Davide's right-hand woman (Sabatini is a variant of Saba)<sup>51</sup> and Franco Bernabè as one of the experts that collaborated at the Gianroberto Casaleggio Association's project Nothing will ever be the same again – Italy after the Corona virus: predictions on how our future will change.<sup>52</sup> How appropriate, since Bernabè is a former member of the Bilderberg Group's steering committee<sup>53</sup> and former Vice Chairman of Rothschild Europe.<sup>54</sup> Another expert that helped to prepare the above report was a guy called Roberto Poli. Remember this surname? Umberto Saba was born Umberto Poli. Plus, last year Davide Casaleggio made an interview with Jeremy Rifkin. Remember him from Part 2? He's a key advisor to the EU and China about the coming Fourth Industrial Revolution. They have known each other since about 2010.

As I mentioned above, another co-founder of the company Casaleggio Associati was Enrico Sassoon. It is with him that we come full circle.

First of all, he admits that he comes from the Sassoon family that traded opium and spices with India and China via the East India Company. He was asked if this was true in an Italian TV show. If you listen to it, you will notice how the host (mis)pronounces his surname. The second part of Sassoon should be pronounced as the word 'soon', but he says 'Sasson'.<sup>55</sup> A host of another show made the same (mis)pronunciation.<sup>56</sup> This is an important clue, you will see why in a moment. Enrico has had his fingers in many prominent pies: Editor-in-Chief of Harvard Business Review Italy; Chairman and CEO of The Ruling Companies, an association gathering around 120 member companies and professionals; Chairman of Global Trends, an independent research and communication company based in Milan; independent management consultant for companies, consulting firms and associations; board member of the American Chamber of Commerce in Italy (of which he has been CEO from 1998 to 2006) and of Aspen Institute Italia.

The Sassoon family is related to the Rothschilds and we can read the following in the section Related family papers at The Rothschild Archive:<sup>57</sup>

The Sassoon family, known as 'Rothschilds of the East' due to the great wealth they accumulated, is of Baghdadi Jewish descent. The family were based in Baghdad, Iraq, before moving to Bombay, India and then to China, England, and other countries. It is said that the family descended from the Shoshans, one of the families of Iberian Peninsula. From the 18th century, the Sassoons were one of the wealthiest families in the world, with a merchant empire spanning the continent of Asia [...] As the company expanded it set up branches in India (Calcutta, Karatchi), in China (Hongkong, Canton, Hankow, Shanghai), Japan (Kobe, Nagasaki, Yokohama), in the Persian Gulf (Baghdad) and in the United Kingdom (London, Manchester) [...] David Sassoon & Co. acted as agent for many other companies in East Asia and South East Asia. As well as merchant trade, David Sassoon & Co. were involved in banking activities, forming part of a consortium of British merchants who founded the Hong Kong & Shanghai Banking Corporation in 1865 [...] After the Second World War David Sassoon & Co. was eventually sold to UBS of Switzerland [...] In 1873, Louise Perugia, daughter of Achille Perugia of Trieste, Italy, married Arthur Sassoon //We have seen Trieste above – it was the birthplace of Umberto Saba, and it still is an important port in the Mediterranean. In fact, there is a container shipping line that connects the Far East and the Mediterranean (with the Port of Trieste as its final destination) called Phoenician Express// [...] Sir Edward Sassoon, 2nd Baronet, of Kensington Gore [...] was a personal friend and confidante of King Edward VII.

Other listed families are: Cahen d'Anvers (related to Morpurgo/Marburg, a wealthy Jewish family from Trieste), Cohen (as in Susan Cohn Rockefeller), Goldschmidt-Rothschild (anglicized to Goldsmith), Lambert (as in Rebecca Rockefeller Lambert), Montefiore (a variant of Blumberg, Bloomberg; European diplomats and bankers; as in Michael Bloomberg), Perugia (a merchant family from Trieste; 'Perugia' is the capital of the Italian region of Umbria), Primrose, Earls of Rosebery (ancient Scottish family of politicians and statesmen), Samuel, Sassoon, Worms, Beer (= Giacomo Meyerbeer, a composer; a variant of De Beer, which the De Beers diamond company was named after, and the Rothschilds funded it), Bischoffsheim, Ephrussi, Landauer (related to the Bauer family; the founder of the Rothschild dynasty was born Mayer Amschel Bauer, not Rothschild), and Schey von Koromla. While searching, I also found James Meyer Sassoon, Baron Sassoon of the Sassoon dynasty on the ICIJ Offshore Leaks Database website.<sup>58</sup> There is no doubt that the Meyers are an important hidden branch of the "Rothschilds", which is admittedly a made-up surname, an umbrella term for all those families above (and others not listed).

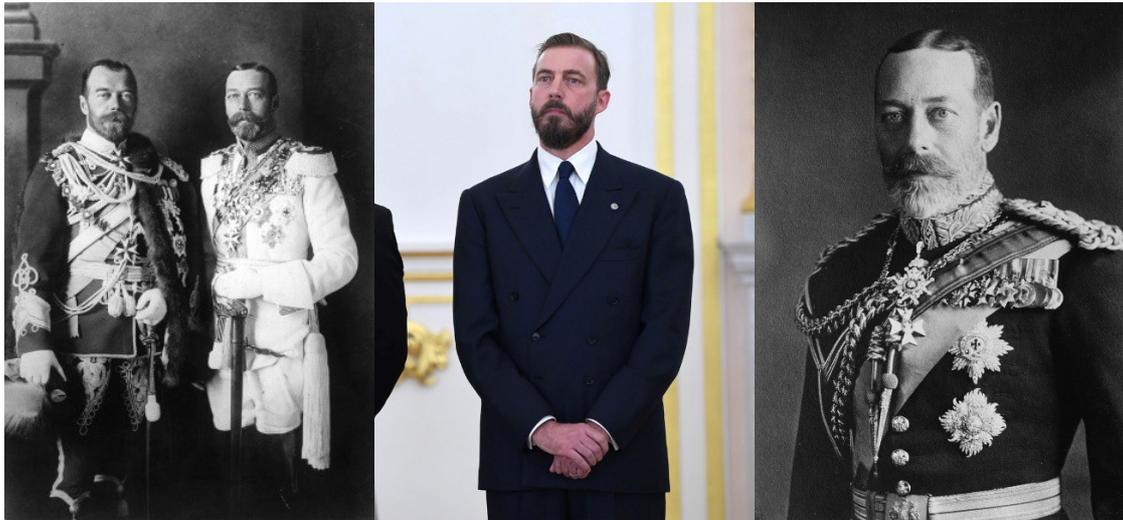

So this is Enrico Sassoon's pedigree. But the question is, how does he really fit into this Italian story? You saw above that the Sassoons supposedly come from the Shoshans, one of the families from the Iberian Peninsula. The ANU Museum of the Jewish People tells us the following about the surname Sassoon/Sasson:

The surname Sassoun can be derived from Shushan, which is Suza, the ancient capital of the kings of Persia (Daniel 8.2, Esther 1.2), Shoshan. The Arabic prefix "Aben-" and the Hebrew prefix "Ben-" both mean "son of". In some cases Sassoon is a matronymic surname (derived from a female ancestor's personal name), associated with the Hebrew female personal name Shoshanah, meaning "rose" [or "lily" if you look up the term Shoshani; think about the fleur-de-lis symbol used by the nobility].

One of the first records of surnames in this group is that of Shlomoh Ben Joseph Ibn Shushan, Nasi ("leader") of the Toledo Jewish community (Spain) in the 11th century. Yehouda Hacoheh Ben Soussan, who was chief rabbi of Fez and surnamed 'HaGaon HaHassid', arrived in Morocco from Babylonia with his father and was the teacher of Maimonides. He died at the stake for refusing to convert to Islam in 1165. He was a member of the illustrious Soussan family from Babylonia which probably came to Morocco after the decline of the yeshivot of Babylonia at the beginning of the Moroccan golden ages in the 9th and 10th centuries. The spelling Xixen is recorded in Spain with Astruc Jacob Xixen (sometimes spelled Xuxen) in 1262, while Abraham Ibn Shushan, son of Don Mosse Aben Xuxen was a tax collector in Toledo in the 13th/14th century. Sassoon is recorded as a Jewish surname in 12th century Spain with the Ibn Shoshan family of Toledo, who claimed descent from King David.<sup>59</sup>

Kings of Persia, Babylon, King David ... oh my. They are royals who moved from the Middle East to the West and the Far East, ending up also in Spain and, I assume, other European countries as well. As is usual with Jews (and the elite in general), they tweaked their surname to blend in with the locals and hide their true origins. It is my opinion that Sassoon is probably a variant of Soisson, and Forebears confirms it.<sup>60</sup> This explains why the Italians (and probably also the French) instinctively pronounce their name Sasson instead of Sassoon, since Sassoon doesn't sound Italian nor French. The Soissons are a branch of the Savoia family (Savoia-Carignano-Soissons, Savoia-Villafranca-Soissons). The most illustrious member of the Savoia-Soissons was Prince Eugenio di Savoia-Soissons, son of Eugenio Maurizio and Olimpia Mancini,<sup>61</sup> which links her to Mario Draghi, current primer minister of Italy, and there was even a Hôtel de Soissons (a mansion) in Paris, which was built for Catherine de' Medici, another link to Draghi through his wife.<sup>62</sup> The Soissons were French royals (Bourbons) related to the Savoias. Among other branches of the Savoias are also the Savoy-Genoa and Savoy-Nemours (which links them to the Du Pont de Nemours family and the famous chemicals company of the same name). The Savoias are also Kings of Armenia (= Komnene/Cohen) and Overlords of Monaco. They are also related to the Romanovs, as admitted by Prince Aimone of Savoy-Aosta in an interview.<sup>63</sup> He has been the Ambassador of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta to the Russian Federation since 2019 and has worked in Russia since 2000.<sup>64</sup>

Emperor Nicholas II of Russia, Prince Aimone of Savoy-Aosta, King George V

Now that we cleared this up, we will conclude the paper with the analysis of two videos published by Casaleggio Associati, who created the Five Star Movement party.

The first one is Gaia – The Future of Politics, "their vision of the future of politics, described via a video",<sup>65</sup> "an experimental video from 2008 that hypothesizes possible scenarios of the future created by Gianroberto Casaleggio".<sup>66</sup> It doesn't talk just about the future, but also about past events, milestones. A few excerpts:

Gaia, a New World Order, is born today, the 14 August 2054.

This is how the video starts. The date is simply the 100th anniversary of Gianroberto's birth. The families we have seen in this paper are promoting this NWO, so we are looking at the fruits of their labor.

130 of the most influential personalities of the world, the Bildeberg group, have a private meeting every year to discuss the future of the world economy.

The Casaleggios should know this, since they are Bilderbergers themselves.

2007: In Italy, V Day is the biggest political event that has ever been brought together by using the Internet. It's coordinated through the blog of the famous Italian comedian, Beppe Grillo. Two million people pour out onto the streets to demonstrate in favor of a "clean up" in Parliament.

The V-Day stood for Vaffanculo Day (Fuck-off Day), but in military terms, for example, V-Day means Victory Day, the day an operation successfully concludes.<sup>67</sup> Think about Churchill's V-sign for victory. They say that the V was a reference to four things, one of them was the V for Vendetta movie (due to its anti-establishment sentiment) and the last one, at least in the English version of the Five Star Movement Wiki page, was simply the Roman numeral for number five.<sup>68</sup> The latter made me think about why all the fuss about the V sign since WW2. Could V as Roman number 5 actually refer to the 500 years of the phoenix's cycle of death and re-birth? Is that why they went full speed with the NWO implementation at the start of the new millennium? Is that why they plan things decades in advance? They want to destroy the old world order (the old phoenix) and start a new one (re-born phoenix). What happened 500 years ago? From Wiki: "The 16th century is regarded by historians as the century in which the rise of Western civilization [...] occurred. The Renaissance in Italy and Europe saw the emergence of important artists, authors and scientists [...] Galileo Galilei became a champion of the new sciences, invented the first thermometer and made substantial contributions in the fields of physics and astronomy, becoming a major figure in the Scientific Revolution." And Leonardo Da Vinci was alive at the time. Today, we are seeing the demise of the Western civilization and huge efforts to suppress the new Renaissance and new Scientific Revolution sparked by the emergence of new important artists, authors and scientists, among them also the New Leonardo, Miles Mathis himself.<sup>69</sup>

Look at the symbol of Grillo's V-Day and his party, and compare it to the one of V (Visitors) series from 2009 and V for Vendetta movie from 2005 (the year when Grillo's blog was created):

The V of the V series is very similar to the V of Vendetta. Now check this out:

So Grillo & Co. had a seemingly friendly agenda that was a cover for something more malevolent. I mentioned the concept of the Dawn of a New Day/sunrise in Part 1 of the GBN series. We can find this spook marker also in the movie V for Vendetta:

The last one is a sunset, because it's on the eve of the revolution, before the destruction of the parliament. Out goes the old, in goes the new. Another example is at minute 0:57:45: "May [5] 23rd [2+3=5]. My first batch of subjects arrived today and I have to admit that I'm very excited. This could be the dawn of a new age. Nuclear power is meaningless in a world where a virus can kill an entire population and leave its wealth intact." The director of the movie said "the decision to pick 2020 as the year in which his film was set was a coincidence".<sup>70</sup> Right, we heard the same from the scriptwriters of The Lone Gunmen series, which predicted 9/11 in the pilot episode six months before it happened.

The thing about the destruction of the parliament is symbolic, since they probably want to usher in the internet, digital voting. Which is even more corrupt than analog voting. Grillo's party is an example of that, just google it up. So we have seen the parallels between this movie, Grillo's party and the V series. Not promising at all.

Let us continue with the Gaia video. They keep pushing the notion that internet = freedom. In a way, it is true, but we have seen through Miles's work how controlled it is and how strong the censorship has become in the last few years, especially during Covid.

And then comes the most spooky part of the video, probably the reason why they published it at all, since they like to tell us in advance what they plan:

2020. Beginning of the Third World War that lasts 20 years. Destruction of the symbols of the West, Saint Peter's Square, Notre-Dame de Reims, Sagrada Família. Use of bacteriological weapons. Acceleration of climate change and rising of the seas of 12 metres. Starvation. End of the fossil fuel era. Reduction of the world population to one billion people.

Again, these are the top dogs talking, so they are not bullshitting us. Notre Dame de Paris burned in 2019. This is another piece of evidence that they plan 'strategic shocks' as Covid-19 way in advance. In the last Global Trends report from April this year, they wrote that "the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic marks the most significant, singular global disruption since World War II". The reference to WW3 reminds me on the speech of the French president Macron at the beginning of Covid when he stressed 6 times that "we are at war":

We are at war, admittedly a health war: we're fighting neither an army nor another nation. But the enemy is there, invisible, elusive, and it's making headway. And that requires our widespread mobilization.<sup>71</sup>

How appropriate, since earlier in his career he worked for Rothschild & Co and was a protégé of David de Rothschild himself.<sup>72</sup> Also, two months ago, he appeared wearing a black T-shirt with an owl symbol.<sup>73</sup> The owl was used on old Phoenician coins and is still one of the favorite spook markers, symbolizing the (neo)Phoenician stealth and covert operations.<sup>74</sup> I assume this was a signal for something to insiders, the same as Grillo wearing a protective mask before the Covid scare started in Italy.

Saint Peter's Square (Vatican, Italy), Notre-Dame de Reims (Roman catholic cathedral in Reims, France, the traditional location for the coronation of the kings of France) and Sagrada Família (Roman catholic basilica in Barcelona, Spain) are famous symbols of catholicism in the three most powerful catholic countries. These were the European countries most hit with fascist measures during Covid.

The acceleration of climate change, starvation, end of the fossil fuel era and the reduction of the world population are classical scarecrows (and emerging trends), mentioned also in those Global Trends reports. The last one features a scenario (the 5th one) called Tragedy and Mobilization:

In 2040, a global coalition, led by the European Union (EU) and China working with nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) and revitalized multilateral institutions, is implementing far-reaching changes designed to address climate change, resource depletion, and poverty following a global food catastrophe caused by climate events and environmental degradation. Richer countries shift to help poorer ones manage the crisis and then transition to low carbon economies through broad aid programs and transfers of advanced energy technologies, recognizing how rapidly these global challenges spread across borders.

This sounds like the preachings of Jeremy Rifkin, since he's advising the EU and China about the coming new industrial revolution. In his interview last year with Davide Casaleggio, he said that "EU and China will get together [...] Europe and China are going to show the way [...] across Eurasia from Shanghai to Rotterdam [...] There are four countries that need to lead this: it's going to be Germany, France, Italy, Spain [...] Italy has to lead this, this is a ... actually this is a Svengali moment on a much bigger scale. Italy was the brains behind. I don't think people realize the role Italy played, it wasn't just France and Germany. Italy played a major intellectual role in this". So Covid was just the accelerator for this techno-fascist revolution.<sup>75</sup>

Back to Gaia video:

2047. Everyone has his identity in a world social network, created by Google, called Earthlink. To be, you must be in Earthlink, or be not. No passport is required anymore.

Actually, Google has a thing called GAIA ID: "Every user at Google (both Gmail users and others) has a unique GAIA ID (Google Accounts and ID Administration ID). This ID is used for identifying the user in Google's multiple products and can be used to find multiple details about the user."<sup>76</sup>

In January 2019, a decade after Gaia, Casaleggio Associati published another video called The End of Work as We Know It.<sup>77</sup>

It starts by describing the history of work and at minute 02:29, when it talks about productivity, provides a pie chart with the "share of the capital" (1/3) and the "quota for workers" (2/3). The part representing the share of the capital features the photo of John D. Rockefeller.<sup>78</sup>

Minute 02:57: "In 1975, with the beginning of digital technologies, the law of redistribution of income between capital and workers lost value. Increased productivity begins to go exclusively for the benefit of capital, the salary of the worker remains almost unchanged."

Minute 07:34: "In the 2040s, the hyper concentration of capital in the hands of a few multinational companies creates a global social imbalance. It does not bring benefits to workers who were no longer part of the production process, but pushes customers to claim a part of redistribution of this value. For this reason, all fiscal policies and redistribution of this income are redefined."

In Global Trends 2040 (the last one) they mention the "continued rise of powerful firms". So in 2040, the upper-class families, symbolized by Rockefeller in this case, own everything. We have seen above in Gaia that WW3, starting in 2020, is going to last twenty years (=2040). This means that they plan to bring back the old feudalism, where you as a worker live in a home owned by your employer or the government and work for them. Those that will have their own small companies, properties, and vehicles will be considered as some kind of minor nobility. Same old, same old, but new.

We can see this unfolding right now. It just so happens that the descendants of John D. Rockefeller, who hide behind Blackstone and BlackRock, are in a buying frenzy.<sup>79,80</sup> They are investing billions in US single-family homes, student-housing properties, rental properties in cities across the globe, buying entire neighborhoods.<sup>81</sup> Other countless asset managers and investment companies are doing the same. Mind that BlackRock is the largest manager of retirement assets in the world.<sup>82</sup> This brings us back to the Pharma Futures project (at the beginning of the paper) that was financed also by pension funds.

Another shock besides the digital/cyber Covid that is on the horizon is a new global financial crisis, which they say will involve bail-ins this time,<sup>83</sup> not bail-outs, and the cure for that will supposedly be the digital currency.<sup>84</sup> This shift could occur around 2025.

If it does, it would match the previous two decades: 2001: 9/11 > 2007: fin. crisis > 2010s: populist surge (Grillo, Nigel Farage, Marine Le Pen etc.); 2020: Covid > approx. 2025: fin. crisis > 2030s: surge of green parties as per the last Global Trends report ("environmentally focused parties gained political strength, winning several elections").

The next charge maximum is expected to take place in 2027,<sup>85</sup> so I guess it's the right time for another shock (and the implementation of a universal basic income), since we would handle it better than Covid during the current minimum. The next minimum will be in 2031, which is curious, since "in the early 2030s, the world was in the midst of a global catastrophe" as per the Tragedy and Mobilization scenario.

To sum up, you saw that Grillo's party is just another way of controlling the opposition and preventing the revolution, while the top of the party (covert and overt) is made of top nobles. As Bond would say in the last movie, the past is not dead ... at all. And what applies to Grillo, applies to all similar parties and individuals that sprung up just before or during Covid. They are yet to play their role.

If you are fighting this fight, I wish you luck. And a special thanks to Miles for freeing my spirit.