The purpose of this article is to show you that the Russian and Ukrainian regimes coordinate their terror. The conflict has nothing to do with war since the two regimes do not fight each other. Their terror is real however, only the war is fake.

We are going to look at the October 10, 2022 'rocket attack' in the centre of Kiev at the crossing of Boulevard Shevchenko and Vulitsa Volodimirska¹. This was the most advertised event of the day and many news agencies chose to publish photos and film.

The location of the event was selected conveniently in an area with no residential buildings. This removed the problem of people seeing and filming from their windows that a rocket attack was being staged.

¹Булвар Шевченка, Вулиця Володимирська

The crime scene was surrounded by a building of the ministry of education, the University library, the Shevchenko Park and another University building.

Another 'rocket' landed in the Shevchenko Park, a hundred meters south of our crime scene. We are not going to look at that event.

How do we know the event was staged? The production agency that organised this event chose to give us a very easy clue by removing most, if not all, license plates from the film props used in the event. Maybe the cars came straight from the junkyard and didn't have license plates. In Ukraine you are obliged to have two license plates on your car and virtually all cars in Ukraine drive with two plates.

Why would these people give away such a simple clue? Because it doesn't matter. People don't follow the news with the intention to look at the facts. People only follow the crowd and the news tells them where the crowd is going. The question whether the news is real is irrelevant.

Before we show you the missing license plates let me first give you a good overview of the crime scene.

Now we are going to count the cars without license plates.

The silver and grey cars have no license plates. Since the plates do not face the explosion we can assume that something else caused the removal of the plates.

The car on the left has no license plates on both sides. Notice that on the white car the door handle is missing. I guess the car came straight from the junkyard. The white car has a plate on the ground. Maybe it was blown off. . . or maybe they removed it to prevent ID, as with the rest, just forgetting to take it away or flip it over. Looks like AI 9379, with the rest unreadable for me. If anyone wants to try to run it.

You get the point.

If you watch this video with great crisis actors you will find proof that the white car and the car in front have no license plates.

Together with other footage you can show that apart from one undamaged car, a Mini, all the cars in the above photo have no plates. That makes a total of nine cars with at least one plate missing. What are the odds?

Some more crisis actors if you don't have enough, and...

I leave the comments on this one to Miles. A headless dummy with no arms? How far off are we supposed to think that head and arm is blown? No head, no arms, no blood. Amazing.

So yes, this is very strange damage for a rocket attack on a major city. The rockets managed to hit nothing but a few cars? We have some burning cars and a couple of holes in the road that could have been caused by dynamite. Do you really think that an attack by Russia on Kiev would look like this? Targeting a few cars? Because I guess Putin really hates cheap old cars.
