

I've Been Considering Matthew Shepard

and I Believe His Murder Was Faked

Recently, a local choral group in my community performed a piece of music entitled Considering Matthew Shepard. It is an oratorio, which is kind of like an opera but without the acting (think Handel's Messiah), 100 minutes in length, exploring the life, death and legacy of a college student from Wyoming, who in 1998 was allegedly beaten and tortured, tied to a fencepost and left for dead, all simply for being gay. This incident was part of the beginning of the promotion of the whole LGBT movement of the past twenty years, which has been ramped up to a very high degree in the last several years. Let me just say for the record I have nothing against gay or lesbian people. I consider myself a liberal person (I am neither a Democrat nor Republican) and believe everyone should be free to live their lives as they see fit. I am only against being lied to. I guess I had missed this story when it first appeared in the press. I suppose I can say that I knew something smelled fishy here, intuiting this story for what I know it to be: more theater from our friends at the CIA. We will now explore the evidence of this, freely available on the internet.

Let us begin with the mainstream account at Wikipedia. There we find Matthew Wayne Shepard was born in Casper, WY to Judy (née Peck) and Dennis Shep- ard. Miles: I have hit the Shepards many times, think the actors Sam Shepard and Cybill Shepherd. He lived there until his family moved to Saudi Arabia where his father was hired at Saudi Aramco, supposedly as an oil rig inspector. The two parents were housed at the Saudi Aramco Residential Camp in Dhahran, while Matthew was enrolled at The American School in Switzerland, or TESIS. This school is listed at Business Insider as being one “of the most exclusive boarding schools of the super-rich”. I would probably call that a gigantic red flag. Must be a pretty good paying job to inspect oil rigs for Saudi Aramco. TESIS is located in the quaint mountain hamlet of Montagnola, just south of the city of Lugano. Just for kicks I looked to see who else may have lived in Lugano and I came up with the names Heinrich Thyssen, Hermann Hesse, and Mariuccia Medici, whom readers of Miles’ previous papers will certainly recognize. I would also like to note that there just so happens to be a large Air Force Base just south of this compound, the King Abdulaziz Air Force Base. It was built in 1943 and operated by the United States Air Force until 1962, but I will assume that is a lie, as usual, and USAF still runs the place. This would be a pretty convenient place to live if one was working on projects for military intelligence.

After graduating from TESIS Matthew returned to the US, and then subsequently

He then attended Catawba College in North Carolina and Casper College in Wyoming, before settling in Denver, Colorado. Shepard became a first-year political science major at the University of Wyoming in Laramie with a minor in languages,<sup>[4]</sup> and was chosen as the student representative for the Wyoming Environmental Council.<sup>[2]</sup>

Wait. What? He attended college at two different schools but then became a first year student at University of Wyoming in Laramie... after settling in Denver. This obviously makes no sense, and I think it is no accident. I believe they are stirring your brain here. If you are so confused trying to make sense of this (among other things) you won’t notice the other inconsistencies in this story, of which there are plenty, as you will see.

If we take a look at Matthew’s parents, an Intelius search yields little of any value. There are no listings at Geni for either of them. One funny thing is if you look at the dad’s listing at Intelius, it has the mom and both sons, Logan and Matthew, listed as relatives. But if you click on the mother’s listing it only has the dad and the one son Logan, but not Matthew. Also, Logan is said to have been born in 1981, making him 39 years old. But if we click on Logan’s listing there, they have him as being 53 years old. Weird. Matthew’s own listing has him working at the University of Wyoming. Hmm. Maybe he worked for a short time as a cashier in the school bookstore or the student union? The same page also shows he has spent time in Hempstead, TX. I didn’t see anything about that in the mainstream stories. What’s in Hempstead? There is a listing for Matthew at Wikitree that has both parents listed as <private>. They are obviously trying to hide something here. There are Shepard/Sheppards listed in the British peerage. Perhaps they don’t want us making that connection. That would be my guess.

A supposed friend of and limo driver for Shepard was a guy named Thomas E. J. "Doc" O'Connor. Intelius lists no relatives and only Doc's Western Village as places worked. However, if we switch over to Instantcheckmate we get something interesting. Thomas E. Oconnor, same age, 71, has about four other aliases including Thomas E. Oconnor, Thomas O. Connor, Thomas O. Conner, Thomas E. Connor and Thomas J. Oconnor. Huh, weird. He is related to a Viola Connor and three people with the last name Oconnor. Okay, I'm confused here. So which is it, Connor, or Oconnor? His website looks like it's from 1997. What the hell is that? So we are supposed to believe this kid hires a $325 limo ride every time we wants to go out to a gay bar? All that money his dad made at Saudi Aramco must have paid for that. Actually, this Doc O'Connor is most likely a spook, or even more likely, he doesn't even exist at all, except on paper. More on that later.

According to the mainstream story, young Matthew had a pretty rough go of things in his short life, for such a privileged kid. They tell us at Wikipedia that he was gang-raped in Morocco while on vacation. But according to this article, he was in Morocco on a school trip. A gang of locals supposedly raped him 6 times and took his shoes. What? He also supposedly, according to Wiki, had his jaw broken by a bartender for making a pass at him. But according to this article, he was in Cody on another family vacation and went off to a bar by himself and got drunk and left with some strangers. He then blacked out and woke up with a split lip and a bruised jaw. The bartender later confessed to police that Matthew had made a pass at him and he felt compelled to hit him. He freely admitted that to police? We are supposed to believe that, because this was Laramie, WY in the mid 90's that there were no legal repercussions for this bartender beating up a gay guy that came on to him. Sure thing. There was also talk in several places I researched mentioning he had HIV, but the stories are contradictory. In that same article it says he was afraid of HIV and always used protection. It goes on to say that no one knew he was HIV positive at the time of his death. Now Doc O'Connor claims Matthew told him he was HIV positive, according to this source. In this same piece Doc claims he himself had a homosexual encounter with Aaron McKinney, Shepard's murderer! What the hell is going on here?!

On the night of the murder, Aaron McKinney and Russell Henderson picked up Matthew at a bar called the Fireside. They drove him in McKinney's pickup truck to a remote area, took his wallet and beat him in the head several times with a .357 Smith and Wesson Magnum. Then they took his shoes. Again, what? [Shoes in both stories are usual Intel marker. See the prominent shoes in many fake mass shootings.] They then tied him to a fencepost and left him for dead. Why would they bother lifting him up to tie him up to a fence? People are heavy, especially unconscious, as dead weight. That would be a lot of work, even for someone with such a slight build as Mr. Shepard. This makes absolutely no sense. Then they proceeded back to town to pick a fight with two Hispanic teenagers and beat them as well. So, they were homophobic and racist. Pretty convenient for the mainstream narrative, don't you think? After being arrested for this fight, where Matthew's wallet and shoes were found, along with their bloody pistol in their truck, they eventually confessed to the beating of Matthew. Meanwhile, back at the fencepost, Matthew was found by a passing cyclist, Aaron Kreifels, who, after realizing Matthew was not a scarecrow, apparently phoned police. He was found with his face covered in blood “except where his tears had washed his face clean”. Cue the sad violin music. If he had indeed been pistol whipped with a .357 magnum it probably would have killed him instantly. Have you ever seen a .357 magnum? It is a very large, very heavy revolver with a long, large barrel. It could easily put a hole in someone’s head with just one blow, splattering their brains everywhere. This clearly could not be what is claimed to have happened.

Here we should mention the anti-gay pastor, Fred Phelps, who was demonstrating/ picketing at Matthew’s funeral. Phelps graduated from high school at age 16 and received an appointment to the US Military Academy at West Point, but, according to Wikipedia, decided to pursue a religious calling after attending a revival meeting. Yeah, sure. I will assume instead he was recruited by intelligence to pose as a crazy religious nut as part of Operations COINTEL/CHAOS. This was in 1947. Year one of the CIA. I will also assume that he was inserted here to draw more attention to this event, which he certainly did. Guess who else was there? Peter, Paul and Mary. No shit. (see Miles’ paper on the folk scene)

The supposed killers, Aaron McKinney and Russell Henderson have both been interviewed on television while in prison. As we saw in Miles’ paper on the Tate murders, there are no television interviews of federal prisoners, since they are only allowed to speak to police, their attorneys and immediate family members. This alone is enough to discredit the whole story. Of course they give us the usual story of them being transferred to other prison facilities because of “overcrowding”. McKinney is now in a prison in Mississippi and is “not agreeing to interview requests, according to the Wyoming Department of Corrections.” Of course he isn’t. He has, however, “spoken with” actor Greg Pierotti in 2009 during a 10-hour interview, as part of a propaganda piece, I mean play, headed up by a guy named Moisés Kaufman, called The Laramie Project. Hmm. Project, eh? This guy has worked at such places as National Arts Strategies, Inc., The Atlantic, I Am My Own Wife (another propaganda piece), and Lightborne publishing co., a Hollywood visual effects production company. Tell me this, why would you need strategy when dealing with art? Sounds definitely like an intelligence project to me.

In 2014, a woman named Michele Josue made a movie called Matt Shepard Is a Friend of Mine. Just in case anyone had forgotten about this fake murder by then, it had to be hyped yet again, hence this latest propaganda production. The film was, of course, showered with praise from many spook rags including The New York Times, New York Daily News, Slate, The Los Angeles Times, The Hollywood Reporter, San Francisco Chronicle and others. She supposedly attended TESIS with Shepard. She also attended Emerson College, a noted spook school with such alumni as Paul Thomas Anderson, David Cross, Norman Lear, Brandon Lee, Jay Leno, David Foster Wallace and many, many others. As proof of her friendship with Shepard we get these two beauties:

Pretty bad fakes here. Let's start with the first picture. All those people have been pasted in. That is Michele in the tan shirt and bobbed haircut. Look at the unnatural way the outline of her head meets the background. That is a very sharp line there. She evidently exists in only two dimensions. Also look at her shoulder on your right and the way it sits in front of the other girl. The girl with the Coke can's shoulder looks to be at least a foot behind Michele's, while her arm appears to be inside of Michele's hip! The way Matthew is posed there is also unnatural, as is the way his left elbow meets Michele's neckline. Take a look at his other elbow. Can you imagine yourself sitting with someone like that? And what is that under his armpit on your left? Also, what is the person with the plaid shorts looking at? The second picture is admittedly more well done. But just look at the glaring inconsistencies in the lighting and focus of the two subjects. Look at how washed out Matthew's lower neck is. Also his hands. His face is terribly out of focus compared to the relatively sharp reflections on the car in front. How can Michele's hair be so dark on the top of her head while Matthew's is very light in the same spot? That isn't possible. Look at how dark the shadow is under her jawline on our left and how light the shading is on the opposite side of Matthew's neck. And again, what is he looking at? You might ask how the reflections of those two appear on the car if they've been pasted in, but that can easily be added in Photoshop. I know. I looked it up.

We have some misdirection on all this to drum up even more publicity. This is from a guy named Stephen Jiminez, who wrote a book called The Book of Matt, where he postulates that Shepard was murdered during a robbery. The killers in this case were supposedly after his supply of methamphetamine. We get more misdirection when we see this article admitting it is a hoax. Of course they try and spin that, saying that the reason he was murdered, for being gay, was a hoax. But we can be sure that the whole thing was indeed a hoax. We have seen this type of misdirection many times before, creating arguments on both sides to distract people from realizing this whole event was faked.

According to encyclopedia.com, the judge in the case was Barton Voigt. But according to Wikipedia it was district judge Jeffrey A. Donnell. Huh. A Google search on Voigt will bring up this article, telling us that Donnell was sworn off the case by the defendants' attorneys. The article claims

The attorneys didn't say why they wanted Donnell bumped, nor were they required to do so.

Well that's funny, since according to Wyoming state law

Mere allegation of judicial bias is insufficient to form basis for disqualification. — Specific facts showing bias must be presented in the affidavit supporting the motion. Pearson v. State, 866 P.2d 1297 (Wyo. 1994).

In the same article Voigt mentions the OJ Simpson case, which occurred a couple years prior to this. He claims he didn't want to be like Lance Ito and be plastered all over television. He should (and I don't doubt he does, but thinks you don't) know they don't allow TV cameras in court. Again, Miles has covered this extensively in his paper on the Simpson trial and the USA gymnastics team fracas.

The coroner for the Shepard autopsy was a woman named Julie Heggie. That's funny because in her listing at Intelius, while it does indeed say she studied at Commonwealth College of Funeral Service, there is no mention whatsoever of her working anywhere having anything to do with deceased people, only Wyoming Equality (an LGBT organization. Hmm. So the county coroner just so happens to be involved with this as well?) and various llama and alpaca related organizations. Uhh, okay. A Google search on her brings us this. Check out the byline on this article! October 31. Halloween. Anyway, it says that when the new coroner, Tom Ferguson took over in 2008, there were many missing records, including the Shepard autopsy report. Pretty convenient, I'd say. The actual pathologist on the case was a Dr. Patrick Allen, coroner and medical examiner from Larimer Co., CO. He claims he kept his own records of his autopsies. However, Ferguson said he wouldn't attempt to track down new records until he determined if records were indeed missing. Sooo, I guess that's that, then. Dr. Allen apparently performed several high profile autopsies including Shepard's and also the victims of a plane crash near Denver carrying members and staff of the 2001 Oklahoma State basketball team. Incidentally, the plane was a Beechcraft Super King Air 200. Hmm. Is it possible this event was faked as well? We'll have to check that out another time.

The Shepard murder was used as inspiration for a Hate Crimes Bill in conjunction with another incident involving James Byrd, Jr., also occurring in 1998. It was signed into law by Barack Obama in 2009. This incident was most likely faked as well, though I won't take the time to investigate that here, either. Actually, it was faked. See Miles' paper on the [Black Panthers.] This is also convenient because if we have "hate crime legislation" enacted, then we can more easily convince people that "hate crimes" exist. They don't.

At this point, I would like to mention an article I stumbled across in my research from The Advocate, a pro LGBT publication. It contains a list of 19 transgender people who were supposed victims of murder. The first is Ashanti Carmon from Alexandria, VA. Sorry. That person doesn't exist, except in the minds of the scriptwriters at Langley. An Intelius search yields nothing, and Instantcheckmate has a listing with no information at all, except that this person lives in Washington, DC. Yeah, right. At the Pentagon. Next victim is Claire Legato. Seriously? Why not: Blaire Staccato? She was supposedly shot in the head by a guy named John Booth. What was his middle name, Wilkes?! Next we have Malaysia Booker. She was beaten by a mob and then, in a later incident, murdered by a guy named Kendrell Lavar Lyles, age 33 at the time of the murder. You've got to be kidding me. I could go through the rest of them but I think you get the picture.

I linked to that wonderful specimen from this article, at the same spook publication. In it, we see what these people are up to, by their own admission.

"Before the election, we thought we weren't going to be as busy because things were on the right track and that, were Hillary to be elected, we'd stay on that track and even progress more," said Judy Shepard. "And then there's this mess happening now and total turnaround, empowering the haters."

Indeed, hate crimes are on the rise; they increased 17 percent in 2017, according to a report from the FBI. Counties where Trump held rallies leading up to the 2016 election saw a massive spike of 226 percent, which points to a "Trump effect" of the president's rhetoric against marginalized people inflaming hatred. Racists, homophobes, and national terrorists "see leadership doing the things they've apparently always wanted to do, and now they are, they're encouraged," said Judy Shepard.

Actually, we know this isn't even remotely true, and we have actual evidence for that. That links to Miles' paper on Charlottesville, and his guest writer's paper on the skinheads, so we know these events are being faked, just like Shepard's event.

What got me involved in this story, as I mentioned earlier, was the musical composition Considering Matthew Shepard. It was written by a composer by the name of Craig Hella Johnson. They don't say exactly where he is from, only saying he was born in Crow Wing County, Minnesota. He went on to study music at several schools, including Juilliard, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and Yale. He worked for eight years as the director of choral activities at the University of Texas in Austin. He has no genealogy listed at Geni or Wikitree. Since this guy is a fairly famous person, this leads me to believe this is intentional, and that something is being hidden. My guess is he is probably related to these Shepards, as is usually the case in these projects. I myself have even made similar connections in a previous paper.

The album was nominated for a Grammy Award in 2017, but not for its content, as we are being lead to believe. It was nominated for the Best Surround Sound Album category. The Wikipedia entry for this category says

It is one of a few categories which are open to both classical and non-classical recordings, new or re-issued. To qualify for this category, the recording must be in surround quality (with a minimum of four channels). The recordings must be commercially available on either DVD-Audio, DVD-Video, Blu-ray, SACD, surround download or a streaming-only copy. The award goes to the engineer, mastering engineer (if any) and producer. These used to be called Surround Engineer, Surround Mastering Engineer and Surround Sound Producer, respectively, but from 2020 the descriptions are Immersive Audio Engineer, Immersive Audio Mastering Engineer and Immersive Audio Producer, respectively. Performing artists do not receive the award, except if they are also the surround (mastering) engineer or the surround sound producer.

So Johnson himself did not receive the Grammy nomination for this recording, even though many sources continue to report that he did. Of course, an agenda is being promoted here, and needless to say, I for one, don't appreciate the brazen deceit being conducted on many levels here.

Before we go, we must touch on Father/Rev. Roger Schmit. He is an enigma of sorts. For one thing, I have never seen that name spelled thusly. He was the father at the Catholic Newman Center at the university. Usually, Catholic priests are not referred to as Reverend, but Father. In fact, growing up Catholic myself, this has never been my experience. Reverend is typically reserved for Protestant clergy, so that is interesting to see him referred to as either, depending on the source. He is said to have organized and held a vigil for Matthew at the Newman Center. Matthew was described as being Episcopalian, not Catholic mind you, so I'm not sure why he would be involved here in this capacity. Schmit was also reportedly with the family at the hospital when Matthew was taken off life support. He supposedly also counseled young Mr. McKinney while in prison after his arrest. Geez, this guy's everywhere! He is described as a character in The Laramie Project play, which I see as a clue in itself. He also has an IMDB page. NPR has more on this as of 2009. According to them he is now Roger Schmitthe. Come again? I guess we needed another new twist here to confuse us some more before we started putting two and two together. NPR to the rescue! One last thing about this Roger Schmit is that he appears to have been involved in some (I assume fake) kidnapping of Frank Sinatra, Jr. This is the most telling piece I have come across. It is very interesting since we know that "the mob" had been taken over by the CIA before or around the same time as this incident and the Kennedy Assassination (see Miles' paper on that). They say he was 29 years old at the time, so that would put him at the right age to be the same person. We have a big red flag here with this guy.

I just stumbled across this interesting piece, admitting that The Laramie Project is indeed propaganda. It is from World Net Daily, a publication of Jerome Corsi, where we get a little more information on our buddy Doc O'Connor. In case you don't know, Corsi is a big time spook, associated with the likes of Alex Jones, George Noory, Richie Allen, Jordan Maxwell and that ilk. So this will be from the perspective of our option B, as opposed to our option A, namely the mainstream story. Boy, it sure is considerate of them to give us two choices! That's nice. Here they pull us in with some truth right off the bat and then spin it off in another direction, effectively misdirecting those of us who are partially educated. In it they divulge this Doc is not only bi-sexual himself, but is also a former porn actor and self-described "hustler" that would drive groups of people to and from bars in the Fort Collins/ Denver area on drug and alcohol-laden excursions. Apparently in The Book of Matt (I admittedly didn't waste my time reading any of it) it is claimed that McKinney and Shepard indeed knew each other and even occupied Doc's limo together during a group sex encounter as part of Doc's "escort service"! Wow. But this alternative narrative they feed us still supports the mainstream, ignoring the fact this event was faked altogether, as our option B always does. That is why we always look for option C: the truth.

I finally decided to do a search on Wikitree for Judy Shepard and... boom! Jackpot. All listings are private, but I think they still give up the farm here. The first one is "Living Kuhn", managed by Charles Oliver. Next is "Living Coonts", managed by Paul Fleetwood. Third is "Living Peck", managed by Lance Martin. We know from Wikipedia her maiden name is Peck, so despite their efforts, they tell us what we need to know in short order. One, two, three. Readers of Miles' papers will know that Kuhn/Coonts = Cohen. Here they are again! Oliver could link us to Oliver Cromwell, and Fleetwood may link us to the Peerage. If I want any information on these listings, I need to contact the respective page managers, but I doubt they would give it to me.
